

An imprint of a Cape Turtle Dove.

- There was a loud bang, and I went to see what it could be?
- An intruder trying to get in? An accident in the road outside?

Photograph by Gavin Lawson,

This is the imprint of a Cape Turtle Dove, which flew into the window and it is still alive 10 hours later walking around in the garden.

And this is not the first time this has happened to a dove, although the previous one was a Red-eyed Dove.
